

Press Release 12/14/09 - Culligan Selects CES & Taskmaster APT to Capture Invoices

December 14, 2009, Kansas City, MO – CES announced today that they along with RightPoint Consulting have been chosen by Culligan to automate the processing of invoices and other accounts payable business documents, including purchase orders, credit memos and service orders. CES solution provider, RightPoint, of Chicago, Illinois helped Culligan find the right solution and will oversee implementation.

Culligan was founded in 1936 by Emmett Culligan, an entrepreneur who introduced the world to soft water in 1921. Following in the innovative footsteps of its founder, Culligan has emerged as the world's leading water treatment company. For over 70 years, Culligan has led the way in water treatment technology, providing the most advanced products and solutions for the world's water problems.

Culligan will use KnowledgeLake Capture to scan and Taskmaster APT to automate data entry of structured and unstructured documents, reducing costs and streamlining operations. All documents will be stored into SharePoint and retrieved via KnowledgeLake Imaging Server.

Culligan selected Taskmaster APT due to its unique learning capability of invoices along with the ability to quickly identify line items. The feature that pushed APT ahead of all other competing products was the ability to match against PO and PO line items. Once data is captured from invoices APT will upload invoice data to a QAD accounting system, and hand off images and indexes to KnowledgeLake Capture Server for storage and retrieval in SharePoint.

Once the AP automation solution is implemented, Jack Roberts of Cutting Edge Solutions explains that Culligan will add remote scanning from digital copy machines (also known as Multi Function Devices) "APT will streamline a current cumbersome paper based process into an efficient auditable electronic process for Culligan," says Roberts.
